EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENT.

on His Duties.

GENERAL AND PERSONAL.

The President to-day appointed Charles O. Stockslager of fisiens, Kan, to be Re-ceiver of Public Moneys at Hafley, Idaho, vice Joines, S. Waters, whose term of office has expired.

New Gaugers Appointed.—John A. Davis, Lynchburg, Sixth Virginia district, and David Poindexter of Germantown, Fifth North Carolina district.

The Cruleer Chicogo.—The new crulser Chicogo has received her coal supply and orders for her trial cruise will shortly be issued by the Acting Secretary of the Navy.

Cabinet Meeting To-day .- The Cabinet retary Bayard and the acting secretaries of all the other Departments, excepting of the Navy.

The Boston's Trial Trip.—The new cruiser Boston started on her trial trip at 750 this morning. She is commanded by Captain Ramsey, and is cruising on Long Island Sound.

New Civil-Service Classification.-The Civil-Service Commission have under consideration a pian for a more uniform classification, so that all persons perform-ing similar work shall be given similar examinations.

Evans was formally installed in his duties as secretary of the Lighthouse Board to-day and presented to the force seriatim. Cap-tain Evans has served two terms as light-house inspector and is said to be in every way a man of the experience and ability re-

Commercial College Currency.—The action of the Secret Service Department regarding business college currency has brought a large number of inquiries from commercial colleges all over the country. Samples of currency are sent in most cases, and Chief Clerk Brooks passes on them, pointing out any objectionable feature.

Missionary Donne's Case .- The State Department is in communication with United States Consul Voight at Manila

Arbitration of the Fisheries Question.—It is said at the State Department that the President has the power to spoint a board of commissioners to co-operate with the English board in regard to the settlement of the isheries question. Of course, any reaty made by this board would require ratification by Concress to be blading. There is nothing to Indicate, however, that any such board has yet been settled upon.

Another Civil-Service Problem.—
The Civil-Service Commissioners have saked the Secretary of the Interfer why certain appointments have been made in the Geological Survey without examination. The Director claims that he can appoint scientific employes wiftont applying to the Commission, but the latter hold that the appointments in question do not come under this designation.

The recent addition to the building regulations forbidding the outling or dressing of stone on street parkings, except when tight board fences are crected to protect passers by from the flying spawls, has resulted in the arrest of several firms. A protest was made by a small delegation of stone-cutters before the Commissioners yesterday. The increase in the number of dwelling houses erected in alleys lately, has caused the authorities to pay more attention to their condition. The Commissioners yesterday issued the following order regulating sidewalks in alleys: In alleys 30 feet or more in width, 5 feet, between 30 and 25 feet wide, width, and alleys let we shall be followed by the standard feet wide, 5 feet, and in alleys less than 30 feet wide, of feet, and in alleys less than 30 feet wide, and then only on one side.

They were coming in slowly all day and the list will be greatly increased before night. The doctors, after registering, visit the different places where the ecotions will meet and then go off in squads and take in the public places of interest.

In the armory of the Light infantry, at Albaugh's Opera House, where the congress will meet, was a large force of men at work this morning unpacking boxes and putting things in shape for the exhibition which is to be held there. The exhibitors are the leading manufacturers of medicines and surgical instruments of the country. Dr. Patterson has charge of the exhibition, The spaces for exhibitors in the structurers of mege of the exhibition. The spaces and shapes. The exhibition here will be one of the finest of its kind.

At the Rifles' armory there will also be an exhibition. The number of especies up to date are eighteen. There remain live viscant ones, which will probably be secured before the beginning of the congress. At the armory everything is quiet, the exhibitors have not yet sent worksten to prepare the stands.

"There," exclaimed the doorkeeper, turning to Tim Currie man with a resigned look, "that is a fair sample of what people expect us to do. There signed look, "that is a fair sample of what people expect us to do. There are on an average five hundred people visiting the Muscum every day, and we have to act as walking encyclopedias for the whole five hundred. Can I tell what part of the country they come from? Well, I should say so. I have been here thirty two years, and I can tell where people are from as far as I can see them. Married couples? Why, yes, they all come shyly in, and when I ask them for their unbrellas and canss they usually want to give up everything—nunch usakets, bundles, shawis, coats, and everything else. Then they walk down the moin alste until they reach the fish pood. That has a fuscination for them, and they frequently spend the balance of the day there.

Just then an old gentleman walked by and seeing the doorkeeper's hand outstretched for his umbrella, he grayped it and gare it a cordial abake. "Does that often happen?"

"Yes, Indeed. The other day a party of thirty came in said every one shook hands with me. They seem to think I held a sort of a public reception here."

"How old is that?" asked a manpolating to a specimen of petified wood from Colorado. The doorkeeper courteously made the necessary explanations to him.

"That is a fair specimen of the questions asked," he continued. "Some are the most ridiculous it would be possible to imagine. A good many of the people who come in here can scarcely be induced to part with their canes and umbrellas. They are afraid that this is a way of getting the mosey. They are usually greatly relieved when they find that there is no cost either for checking or for visiting the Museum."

The B. and O. Railroad Company has made a traffic arrangement, which was approved by the directors at their meeting hast Saturday, which, it is reported, is in the direction of the opening up of a through line to New York. The directors and the officers of the company declined to make the facts known, but it is said the new arrangement, will call for some change in the working and in the policy of the rood, and that the agreement will go into effect without delay. As it is well known that the entrance into New York is a problem with which the B and O. has long wrestled, the belief prevails in dissocial circles that the traffic agreement is made to open the way to that city. Somefurther changes are also tabled of as likely so occur hereafter, which, it is promised, will be to the advantage of the B. and O. Company.

EXCITEMENT AT BACO.

atest Developments in Regard to the Great Robbery

SAFO, ME., Sept. I.—Some of the riceds of Frank McNellly, the ab-cending clerk of the Sam Savings lenk, think he is deranged.

They say that he has been acting cry queerly lately, and has complained f head trouble.

When Trensurer Kelly left the bank tenester and president was supposed to know how to open the safe, but the Nelly must have studied the comin show how to open the safe, but McNelly must have studied the combination when the vault was spen sime time during the treasurer's absence, and flowed it an usay task to early out sile plans.

He has been living beyond his means ever since he has worked at the tunk. He wore fine clathing, often threat livery stable touns and always had plenty of spending money. He has left some bills unpaid and sondry smounts betrowed from friends. A few days ago, when talking with a freed about his future plans, he said that he expected to be thousands of miles away in September. Ha mother is completely prestrated by the abock. His botther, tharry, who holds a respensible position in the American Express office, has gone to Montreal in search of the alsecander. Bank Examiner Ritchie will begin work on the books to day.

The excitement over the robbery of the Sacis Hank has shown no signs of alattement. No clue to McNellif's hiding place has been obtained. The lank officials are now of the opinion that McNelly contlessed the bonds on the list of August, while engaged in cutting coupons, and that he did not gain access to the security valid on the day he left the hank. What disposal he has made of the negotiable honds is not known, but he has been making frequent trips to Portland of late, and its supposed he has been taking steps toward selling them.

The $1,500 which he stole was all the cash drawer contained, but had he secured the money in the steel cheat, he could have taken much more. The makes it appear all the more probable that he did not open the chest. In hade stoke the coupons were cut. In place of the package of bonds stolen he left a dummy, in the shape of a packare of red letters, so that a gance at the pile of bends would not have swakened usefulcion.
